INTRODUCTION

This compilation of the first five generations of the descendants of John1 Wetherbee of Marlboro and Stow, Massachusetts, represents the combined work of many people during the past 10 to 12 years. Some individuals have worked on it even longer.

The first three generations remained in the northern New England states (Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Vermont). With the fourth generation, they began to migrate into Maine and New York. The state Bureaus of Vital Statistics did not begin with the original settlements, but rather at much later dates: Massachusetts, 1841; Vermont, 1870; New Hampshire, 1901; and Maine, 1892. Many towns voluntarily kept birth, marriage, and death records from the time of the first settlements, but the records were not retrieved at the time of establishment of the state level bureaus. The New England Historic Genealogical Society began, in Massachusetts, sometime after 1850, retrieving and recording vital records from before 1850, and publishing them in individual books, by towns. They are still doing this, as the Pepperill early records have only recently been published. They retrieved records from town records, church records, cemetery records, and family Bible records. When you realize that over 175 volumes have been published, it is almost unbelievable that so many records could be retrieved some 230 to 300 years after the fact. It must be realized that some of the data was never recorded in the first place, or had been lost during the intervening years.

For example, we have the saga of Oliver, the son of Josiah, whose birth date has not been retrieved. The first real knowledge of him was the deed found by Mrs. Cynthia Hill at the Springfield Court House. Subsequently, the birth records of the children of Oliver and Rachel (Willard) Wetherbee have been found in the town records of Wendell, Mass.

Another example is the information found by Mrs. Emma May concerning a Marshall Wetherbee who is reported to have dug potash in Antrim, NH, and who is buried under a plain fieldstone in the Antrim cemetery. We may never know his origins.

Vermont vital data covering the period before 1870, was retrieved and recorded by the WPA during the depression of the 1930's. Again, they did a fantastic job, provided the data was still retrievable. Death records must have been obtained from gravestones, because the 3x5 cards with death data provide the name of the cemetery. The name of the cemetery does not appear on cards after 1870. Some of the WPA people also sat down with published town histories containing genealogical information, and made cards for all the information found therein. For example, the card may indicate the source as "History of Rockingham, page 246."

New Hampshire is another story altogether. The Bureau of Vital Statistics would accept ONLY data appearing in official town records. The New Hampshire Society of Genealogists is now staffing the research room on a volunteer basis, and they have started their own files, accepting data not to be found in official town records.

Apparently, the New Hampshire towns began keeping separate books of vital records around 1850, BUT, based on my own research locally, I have the feeling that the only births and deaths recorded were those attended by a doctor. If there was no doctor in attendance, the event was not recorded. One example is my aunt, who died in July 1988, at the age of 99 years, 6 days. According to the town records, she was never born.

As we continue with subsequent generations this will become more evident. By the time of the 1850 census, when we get complete names, and state of birth, we find many "unclassified" persons. For example, in Winchendon, Mass., in the 1850 census there is: Dorcas Wetherbee, age 43 (apparently a widow) and children William A., 20; Susan G., 18; Luther N., 16; Charlotte D., 13; and Adeline, 10 --- all six of them claiming birth in New Hampshire --- with no marriage record for Dorcas, and no birth records for any of the children.

It is obvious that our Wetherbee Genealogy will have holes which we may never be able to fill, no matter how hard we may try. I guess this is true of all genealogies, especially those which date back to the 1600's and 1700's. It seems to be common to find children being born 2 or 3 years apart, and when the retrieved birth records provide larger gaps, it is probable that there were other children in the family whose birth dates defied retrieval.

Early marriage records included only the names of the bride and groom, and not their respective parents. Children's names were repeated in families, and if Mary Wetherbee married John Doe, it may be difficult to determine the identity of her parents.

The original "Yellow Pages", named for the color of the paper they were printed on, were submitted as Galley Proofs, subject to possible errors. It was open for additions to be provided by the many Wetherbee "cousins", and they have responded. It seems imperative to get out the first five generations as they now stand, with the knowledge that sometime in the future, we may have to issue supplements, if, and when, other information comes to light.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

While I am the compiler of these first four generations, I have not done all the research. I must express gratitude to Jeremiah Otis Wetherbee, who provided a hand-written genealogy which was passed down to my father, providing my father's direct ancestry.

Also, to Winthrop Wetherbee, who expanded upon his father's information and eventually wrote up the first three generations, with names and dates of birth of the fourth generation of children. Unfortunately, he found gaps which he could not fill. There appears to have been only one copy prepared, originally, which has been photocopied. I have found it bound as one volume, and also as two volumes. I believe that there were only a few photocopies made.

Also, gratitude is due to the New England Historic Genealogy Society for their work in retrieving and publishing early Vital Records; to the several State Bureaus in Mass., Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, for access to vital records, and to the numerous Registries of Deeds and Probate, which have permitted access to their valuable records.

The original "Round Robins" were the ones who really got the genealogy going, and preceded the existence of the WEATHERBEE ROUND-UP, by exchanging onion-skin correspondence -- up to eight "skins" with seven carbons at a time. These included Emma W. May, Cynthia M. Hill, Mary K. Witherbee, Kenneth Brown, Alice Badger, Lola Franke, as well as myself. Without these "starters", would we have had a genealogy, at all?

Finally, my deepest thanks to all of the "cousins", who have provided material to The Weatherbee Round-Up, which has made my compilation what it is today. I can not name all of you, but you have played an important part in getting us to where we are today.

Thank you, all,

Ethel Wetherbee Mazza

A CONDENSED SURVEY OF THE

GENEALOGY OF THE WITHERBY FAMILY

FROM

Compiled and Written by

Percival L. Witherby

June 6, 1950

Originally, our family name was unquestionably WETHERBY. Its earliest records are to be found in Norfolk and it would appear that, during the period when English speaking was almost entirely phonetic, the first e in the name became, in one or two instances, dotted. Thus, in Thomas Wetherby's will, dated 1444 (the original of which is in Latin) and proved in the Consistory Court at Norwich in 1445, it is seen that he leaves all of his household goods, jewels, and a certain number of marks, to his wife, Margaret Witherby.

Blomefield's "HISTORY OF NORFOLK" contains many references to the Wetherby family and throughout them the name is generally spelled Wetherby. In Berry's Encyclopedia Heraldica, Dictionary of Arms, Vol.2 appears "Wetherby, Norfolk"

"vert, a chevron, ermine, between 3 rams, passant, ar attired, or - crest a ram. Tenax in fide (steadfast in the faith)

The COLLEGE OF ARMS also reports that the following: "Arms of Wetherby were granted temp. Henry VI - vert, a chevron between 3 wethers argent.

But the grant was undoubtedly made to the Thomas Wetherby mentioned above "for his part in regulating and controlling the export of wool in 1429; he and Robert Ingham (both then Members of Parliament for the City of Norwich) were very strenuous and instrumental in procuring the statutes which were of great service to the place they represented; for at that time it subsisted in great measure (as it still doth) by the Woolen Manufacture" (vide Blomefield's History of Norfolk, Vol III page 143). This reference is to the Statutes passed in the reign of Henry VII.

The following extract from Francis Blomefield's Essay on the Topographical History of Norfolk, dated 1806 and in the British Museum, reveals that "Thomas Wetherby was Sheriff of Norwich in 1425, and Mayor in 1432/3, and was a Burgess in Parliament with Thomas Ingham in the 7th and 8th years of Henry VI.

But, as Blomefield's History of Norfolk and other records disclose, Thomas Wetherby "who owned vast areas of land in Norfolk and used to roam the country at the head of a veritable army of retainers, became a very turbulent person", who eventually defied the Crown and, after holding Norwich against the King's forces, was later deprived of his status, and apparently most of his property. He died in 1445, and it is pretty clear that thereafter his brothers Walter and Richard and the family generally, fell in the social scale and migrated to Yorkshire and Suffolk -- which probably explains why later records of their descendants has been difficult to find. But, however that may be, we know (from Blomefield's Topographical History) that the Manor of Moulton Magna belonged to Robert Wetherby and Elizabeth, his wife, in 1560 (2nd year of Queen Elizabeth's reign), and that Elizabeth, after the death of her husband, gave the living to John Dodd. We also know (from "First and Second Diaries of the English College Donay of London, 1878, in the British Museum) that a Thomas Wetherby of York, who was at the Donay College, took the oath prescribed by the Constitution of the College --- August 5th 1681

Investigation of the records of the family in York has not, to the best of my knowledge, been made -- and remains to be done. For, as there is ample evidence of Wetherbys being in, or having lived in, Yorkshire and the place WETHERBY (which is close to York) was probably named after the family, such records, unless destroyed, there doubtless are.

It is, however, perfectly clear -- in fact no other conclusions can be drawn -- from the investigations made by Dr. W. H. Witherby (the son of my great-uncle William Henry Witherby of Croydon), by my father Percival Witherby, and later by Henry Forbes Witherby, and by myself:

(1) That WETHERBY was our original name.

(2) That, though the family has now many branches, and members of it are to be found today (in addition to those in England) in Canada. the United States, and in Australia, they are -- whether spelt WETHERBY or WITHERBY, WEATHERBY or WEATHERLY -- all descended from the Wetherbys of Norfolk, and in reality are one family -- and --

(3) The family is one of the oldest in England; for (vide Francis Blomefield's History of Norfolk) Thomas Wetherby was Freeman of Norwich in 1379, and doubtless the uncle of Thomas Wetherby (described in his will as "Armiger" -- one who bears arms, an Esquire), who was Mercer, Freeman of Norwich in 1415, Sheriff in 1425, Mayor in 1427 and 1432, and Member of Parliament in 1429, and who left (in his will) a legacy to his uncle, Thomas Wetherby. Moreover, a "Robert de Wetherby was Rector of Hokering in the 16th year of Edward I (1288/9 -- vide Blomefield's Essay on the Topographical History of Norfolk - 1806) nearly 700 years back.

GENEALOGY OF THE FAMILY

Now, the authentic descent of the family from father to son having long since been established by Dr. W. H. Witherby of Crowdon from John Witherby of Stowlangtoft in Suffolk in 1673 to the present day, I went at the instigation of my cousin -- Harry Forbes Witherby -- to Norwich in 1919 in the hope of finding evidence there which would confirm the then prevailing belief that our original family name was WETHERBY and, if successful, of also discovering the link between the Wetherbys of Norfolk in the 14th century and the Witherbys of Suffolk 200 years later. With regard to the first of these objectives, I was successful. There was ample proof that, in those days when practically the only perple who could write were the monks (who usually drew up the wills of those who owned property or were possessed of wealth), and spelling was almost entirely phonetic, the name Wetherby could be, and was frequently, written as to appear Witherby -- or if the first "e" in the name was not clearly defined, it appeared as an "i", whether dotted or not -- as sometimes I found that it was not. But I failed, in the time at my disposal, with regard to the second objective, for I discovered no clue which pointed to Suffolk. What I found was that the old Wills of the period required, in the Consistory Court at Norwich, really required examination by an expert, for all those inspected by me were either in very old English (as difficult to decipher as some of the Paston letters) or in Latin or "dog" Latin. Consequently, as I was due to leave England for South Africa, I handed my notes to HARRY FORBES WITHERBY, who it may now be recorded, was the son of Henry Forbes, whose grandfather George was the eldest son of George Henry, the 3rd surviving son of Deputy Thomas Witherby.

But unknown to me till several years later, my cousin Harry Forbes then instituted a thorough Enquiry by the College of Arms, London, through the medium of Mr. J. J. Dellow and it was in the report of this Enquiry that several important factors, including the link with the Witherbys of Suffolk were established. Among them were these:

(1) It is proved by the Will of Thomas Wetherby "Armiger", formerly Mayor of Norwich, dated 1444, and found in the Consistory (Bishop's) Court at Norwich -- the original of which is in Latin:

(a) That he -- the testator - had an uncle named Thomas to whom he left a legacy of 10 shillings.

(b) That though he had no son, he had two brothers - one Walter, to whom he left 20 marks and a cloak; and the other, Richard, to whom he also left 20 marks and a cloak.

(c) That each of these brothers had sons - John, the son of Walter, to whom he left 10 marks; and Walter, Richard, and Simon, the sons of Richard, to whom he left 5 marks, 10 marks, and 40 shillings, respectively.

(2) There was, or had been, however, in addition to John the son of his brother, Walter, another and older John, who almost certainly was (or had been) his (the Testator's) THIRD brother, with whom he (the testator, Thomas Wetherby, Armiger) held rights, with others, in land at Cringleford. For the following is an extract (translated from the Latin) from as old Deed dated 25th May 1449 (four years after the said Thomas Wetherby's death) found in the Norwich City Munimonts:

> "Whereby John Tasburgh, Walter Wetherby, and John Edwards release to Margaret, the relict of Thomas Wetherby (Armiger) Esquire and others all rights in land in Cringleford which the said Margaret and others had with Thomas Wetherby and John Wetherby Senior, now deceased, by grant from Roger-Prat, clerk and others"
> Consequently, it would appear that the John Wetherby Senior here mentioned was not only another brother of Thomas Wetherby (Armiger) Esquire, but that the younger

John, the son of that other brother Walter, was his nephew, and so named after his uncle

(3) Walter Wetherby (one of the two, and almost certainly, three brothers of Thomas Wetherby, "Armiger"), is described in Walter Rye's list of Coats of Armour used in Norfolk before the date of the First Heralds Visitation of 1563 as "one of the gentry in 1433."..This was during the last year his brother Thomas was Mayor of Norwich, after which, according to Blomefield, his, and the status and power of the Wetherbys in Norfolk, waned.

(4) Finally, 60 years later and 49 years after the death of Thomas Wetherby ("Armiger") in 1445, we come to the most interesting and significant document of all -- the will of Walter Wetherby - spelt "Wytherby of Halley" - dated 1494, a non-cupative will, written in Old English, and abstracted from "Ben Johnson" - folio 145 in the Consistory Court at Norwich. This is doubtless the Will of Thomas Wetherby's nephew Walter and one of his brother Richard's three sons. It is the last Will of the Wetherby's to be found in Norwich and, since the Testator had very little property to bequeath and was obviously poor, it was presumable proved (in 1512) and registered at that Consistory Court, because he left the little he possessed to and for the benefit of the (Catholic) Church, and one of his uncles had been one of the gentry of Norfolk in 1443, and another Mayor of Norwich. He bequeathed his soul to God Almighty, and his body to be buried in the churchyard at Halley, and bequeathed to the high altar at Halley for tythes forgotten 3/4d, and to the restoration of the same church, 6/8d. He would have an honest priest to sing for his soul in the Church of Halley for the space of a year having for his salary, 9 marks. He willed that all payments coming from his lands late sold to William Broke of the same Parish should remain for the finding (keeping) of Mawte (Maud), his wife during her life, and after her death, to remain to the disposition of Jeffrey Egmore of the same parish to dispose them "for the well-being of my soul", and also he would that the said Jeffrey should pay to the Church of Halley a fulder (fodder) of lead, or else the value thereof if it may be."

At the bottom of this copy of Walter Wytherby's Will, proved in 1512, appears this note:

"The Index in the Consistory Court above mentioned, gives the above name and Will as that of Walter Witherby of Hallye. Halley or Hallys (Now called Haughley) is in Suffolk, not far from Stowlangtoft and Bury. (Vide: College of Arms Report)

And there we have it!!! The inference is irresistable -- For not only can no record, whether of baptism, marriage, death, or will of any Wetherby in Norfolk be found (to the best of my knowledge) after 1487 - when Margaret the "relict" or widow of Thomas Wetherby "Armiger" left in her Will 100 marks to the Library of the Augustine Friars, the names of Thomas and Margaret Wetherby to be written in the books (vide: Tanner's Notes Vol I, page 47 on the subject of the Augustine Friars House, - translated from the Latin.), but Halley or Hallye (now known as Haughley) close to Stowlangtoft (in Suffolk) was, and still is, like Stowlangtoft, quite a small place, and it is inconceivable that two different, unrelated families bearing the uncommon name of Wetherby, Witherby, or Wytherby, could have resided there.

Therefore, the conclusion may safely be drawn that, as the result of the turbulent conduct of their Uncle Thomas - the disgrace it imposed and the disaster it wrought on the family - one or more of his nephews -- John, Walter, Richard, and Simon, and no doubt their wives - migrated to the counties adjacent to Norfolk after the fall in the social scale of their uncle and father's fortunes. Anyway, it is certain that Walter (one of the three sons of Thomas Wetherby's brother, Richard, and possibly John the son of his brother Walter migrated to Haughley, not far from the village of Stowlangtoft in Suffolk where little more than 100 years later, our great, great, great, great, greatgrandfather, John Witherby, wheelwright lived and worked, from whom our descent from father to son has been definitely established to the present day.

The credit for this laborious and successful research work unquestionably goes, in the first instance, to Dr. W. H. Witherby of Croydon, for though my father Percival and my cousin H. Christopher (the oldest son of Herbert, whose grandfather Richard was the fifth surviving son of George Henry, the third son of Deputy Thomas Witherby) were both actively interested in it, it was Dr. W. H. Witherby who, almost unaided. traced our authentic descent back to John Witherby of Stowlangtoft. But the Forbes Witherbys, like myself, became actively interested it also, and though I took some little part in the Norwick investigations, the credit for establishing the long searched-for link from the Wetherby's of Norfolk to the Witherby's of Suffolk is wholly due to my cousin, the late Harry Forbes - albeit this, I believe, is the first time the very early genealogy of the family has been recorded in condensed narrative form.

And, since, at long last, it has been established, I wish very much it was within my power to complete the descent by filling the one remaining small gap between 1512 (the year Walter Witherby of Haughley's Will was proved) and John Witherby of Stowlangtoft "who was old enough in 1673 to have a son named John, apprenticed in London". But age - for I enter my 80th year on 25 Dec. 1950 - precludes the journey to, and research at Haughley.

Note: There were 2 1/2 more pages to this narrative, which was obtained for us by Robert and Ora Todd on one of their trips to London. However, they deal primarily with the direct-line ancestry of the writer, and I am not including them here.

The Name and Home of the Family

This version of the original ancestry is taken from Winthrop Wetherbee's manuscript, pages 3 and 4.

The Name seems to be derived from the Danish. WEDER, meaning a band or clan, as, for instance, Wetherall, the hall of the band. BYE, meaning a home, an abode, - hence a town, as, for instance, Derby, the deer's abode. Wetherby, the abode, or town, of the clan.

There are more than one hundred and fifty places the names of which end in "by" in Lincolnshire, Nottinghamshire, and Yorkshire, all within the limits settled by the Danes (N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg. 22:29).

Family tradition holds that it was from Yorkshire that John Witherby came. This seems to be more than likely because of the fact that families of the name still live in that county, and because, moreover, there is in the West Riding of Yorkshire (not very far from the City of York) an ancient town named WETHERBY, with a station on the York & Harrowgate Railroad, seven or eight miles southeast of Harrowgate.

The name, during successive generations, has suffered several changes. By diverse branches it is spelled Witherbee, Witherby, Wetherbee, Weatherbee, or Weathersbie: few (if any, in this country) spell it Wetherby, yet the writer is strongly of the opinion, because of the derivation of the word, as well as because of the spelling of the name of the ancient town in Yorkshire, that the last-named form is correct.

Another source states: "By our Saxon ancestors this town was called Wederbi, which signifies to turn, owing to its situation on an angle of the Wharfe River".

Wetherby, -- Norfolk. Vert, a chev. erm. between three rams pass, ar, attired or.
(A field of green with chevron of ermine between three rams walking, silver or white, attired in gold).

The General Armory of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales . . . . .
Sir Bernard Burke, London, 1884

At the College Heralds London, the Witherbee coat of arms (so spelled and recorded) was granted in the time of Edward IV (1461-1483). They said there was no motto, or Ermine, or Ram on top of the shield. Their India ink drawing showed only 3 rams on shield. They said if more information were desired, to go th Shrewsbury, England.

Robert and Elizabeth Wetherby were Lord and Lady of the Manor of Great Moulton in Norfolk circa 1556. He died 1560, wife surviving. He was condemned to be burned for his faith by Mary (Bloody Mary). Three days, however, before the date set for his execution, she died (17, Nov. 1558) and Elizabeth came to the throne. Elizabeth not only restored him his estates, conferred the royal ermine on his arms, but also gave him the motto, Tenax in Fide, the much valued heritage of his descendants.

The earliest grave in the town was 1855; prior to that, all corpses had to be carried to the boundary with North Yorkshire and then taken by horse and cart to Spofforth churchyard, three miles to the north.

"Looking up, you'll see the barge board on the gable end of the Swan Guest House has carvings of vet's instruments in wood. Next to the Swan and Talbot Inn (Talbot being a dog), there's a unique foot scraper in the wall. This Inn and the Angel Inn were the two most important posting houses in Wetherby in the late 18th century and early 19th century. Between them, there was stabling for 170 horses together with 'open' and other stabling. The tenants of the two rented more than 460 acres alomg with granaries, haylofts, cowhouses, and pigsties.

"The first recorded mail coach using Wetherby as a staging post ran from Edinburgh to London in 1786 at a cost of 4.00 pounds for the journey of 400 miles. In the mid 1840's, rail travel reduced local coaching and carrying services to shorter, nearby distances and even that diminished more. At the Angel Inn, called the "Halfway House", lodgings for the post boys were in the stable yard, cottages, or in the extensive hay and straw lofts.

"Wetherby had a cattle market for many years; cattle drovers mustered their herds in lots in the street, often led by Scottish pipers, whose lively airs were said to have a stimulating effect on the tired creatures who had been driven for miles to market. Pigs and sheep were penned on the pavements, the holdfasts can still be seen on the walls at intervals.

"Victoria Street, renamed in 1887 after Queen Victoria at the time of her Jubilee. The Terrace of 25 stone cottages on the right hand side of the street was built by the Duke of Devonshire about 1811 to provide improved housing for some of his tenants. The family of Battle of Britain flying ace Fl. Lt. "Ginger" Lacey lived in one of the cottages, and he was born in Fairfield Villas.

"The first mention of a bridge at Wetherby was made in 1233. It was narrow, probably only 11 feet wide, and constructed of ribbed arches, a method which had been introduced from the Continent. The bridge needed repairs beginning in 1662; cattle had been known to fall into the Wharfe over the low bridge battlements. A severe flooding in 1767, when damage to the bridge was extensive, resulted in it being widened in 1773. In 1823-24, the six arched bridge was built into the old arches.

["They lived on a farm in Rindge where their twelve children were born. In 1804, they emigrated from New Hampshire to northeastern Pennsylvania, locating in what was then Greenfield, Luzerne County. They settled on a fine farm in which is now the southern part of Scott Twp., Lackawanna Cy. It is said that Elder John Miller, the pioneer Baptist preacher helped Abraham Wetherby (this spelling used in Penna.) select the location of his farm, and a fine choice it was indeed. He purchased 175 acres of the best farming land in Scott Township. From this farm, beautiful views are open in almost all directions; on the east lies the Moosic range of mountains; to the north there is a fine view of Elk Hills in Susquehanna County, and to the west one can see for miles off into Wyoming County. This farm is located three miles east of Waverly, PA., near Edella and the Blakely Home. The original farm has since been divided into three farms and the homestead is now (1955) owned by the Stanley Grzybowski family.

"The Wetherby Cemetery is located on this farm. It was begun in 1814 when Ephraim, youngest son of Abraham and Joanna Wetherby, was laid to rest there. Later it became the last resting place for the Revolutionary patriot himself, his wife, six of their children, and many of his descendants as well as many of their neighboring families and friends. The cemetery was enclosed with a well built stone wall built by John Baker and today contains over 100 graves, but is in a neglected condition and needs care.

"Abraham and Joanna Wetherby were staunch Baptists by religious faith. They were constituent members of the Scott Valley Baptist Church when it was organzied in 1817, and many of its early church meetings were held in their log cabin home. They were hard-working, God-fearing pioneers, honest and upright in their lives and widely respected by their fellow settlers. They had twelve children, several of whom became prominent citizens of Scott Township. Today the descendants of these worthy ancestors are scattered" ... far and wide.]

[Note: This compilation was done by William P. Lewis and is dated 1955. Throughout, he does not have complete dates of birth, marriage, and death, but rather uses only the year of the event, which is regrettable. He does, however, pursue some of the girls through several generations. Some information, even though incomplete, is better than no information at all.]

She was b. 21 Jun 1756, dau. of Ebenezer and Susannah (_____) Hardy of Billerica, and d. 15 Oct 1814 in Weathersfield, VT, ae 58.

They, and their dau. Susannah, are buried in the private Wetherbee cemetery in Weathersfield. We have been told that this cemetery is thought to have had as many as 30 gravesites, but only these 3 have survived the years. There is no information presently available concerning the others who may have been buried there, or whether or not they were all Wetherbee's.

61. JACOB WETHERBEE4 (David Jr.3), was born during the very early 1760's, (he claimed to be under 70 in 1830), and d. in Dresden, NY, ca 1840. He was "of Mason, NH" when he married Grace Patten on 12 Aug 1782, at Townsend, Mass. She was the dau. of ____ Patten, and d. ca 1830 - 1840, Dresden, NY. They were both in the 1830 census, aged 60-70, and both gone in 1840. Jacob and Grace, together, sold 30 acres to their son John on 13 May 1836, which implies that they were living at that time. They are presumably buried in a family cemetery on their land, but with only fieldstone markers. Any town or church records which may have existed earlier, were lost in fires during the 1890's.

The six children indicated below are those who were recipients of quit-claim deeds executed by John P., between 1841 and 1847. All were 1/7th shares, indicating that John P. held 2/7th as the oldest son, and the others all acquired 1/7th each.

IF he was the Jacob enumerated in Townsend, Mass., in 1800, there apparently were other children who did not survive their parents: ie. one boy and one girl 10-16; and one boy and three girls under 10.

77. JOAB WETHERBEE4-ARW (Paul3), was b. 26 Apr 1759 in Lunenburg, Mass., and d. 4 Apr 1843 at Chesterfield, NH. He m. Abigail Houghton, 9 Dec 1777 at Leominster. She was b. 19 Dec 1758 at Leominster, dau. of Abiather and Millicent (Carter) Houghton, and d. 12 Mar 1846 at Chesterfield, NH. Both are bur. in Chesterfield.

"Joab Wetherbee is probably Chesterfield's most misunderstood pioneer, and perhaps its most unlucky, as well. For, through no apparent fault of his own, he has acquired a notoriety and reputation that history does not confirm.

Nevertheless, generations of townsfolk have come to regard him with suspicion, even revulsion.

Wetherbee lies buried in a solitary grave close to Route 63 not far from Route 9, in a cemetery unique in Chesterfield, if not in all of New Hampshire. The Wetherbee Burying-Ground is Chesterfield's smallest cemetery, and the only one circular in form. [The circle is unbroken; no entrance-way. Ed.]

Today, Wetherbee's grave is close to the entrance of the Morris Friedsam Cemetery, destined someday to be the principal burial place in town, 8 acres purchased by the town from the Spofford Methodist Church in 1965. But Wetherbee's grave is isolated, giving rise to strange stories over the years about the man and his life.

It was said that he had been guilty of some transgression so terrible that he was refused burial with his neighbors. Only his wife, Abigail, who died four years after her husband, shared his exile from Chesterfield society.

Historical fact seems to indicate that Wetherbee may have been buried in such an unusual place simply because it was close to his home, which stood at the top of nearby Wetherbee Hill, commanding a splendid view of the center of town and the scenic hills to the south. It is not difficult to imagine why he wished to be buried here.

A native of Lunenburg, Mass., Wetherbee was born April 26, 1759. He enlisted in 1775 under Capt. Josiah Stearns and Col. Ephraim Doolittle, and was placed on the pension rolls of Cheshire County in 1832 in recognition of his Massachusetts militia service during the Revolution. His wife, Abigail Houghton, was born in Leominster, Mass., Dec. 19, 1758.

The only noticeable discrepancy in what was, to all intents and purposes, a blameless life is the fact that that his gravestone states that Wetherbee died April 1, 1842, while contemporary records and the Keene weekly newspaper identify the date as April 4. Abigail died March 12, 1846.

What may well be the origin of the cloud that seems to hang over Wetherbee is to be found in Oran E. Randall's 1882 History of Chesterfield.

Here it is stated that "between 1845 and '51, a series of unpleasant events occurred in the town, for which a few evil-disposed persons alone were wholly responsible. In 1845 or '46, the buildings belonging to Ira Wetherbee, situated on 'Wetherbee Hill', were burned, evidently by an incendiary fire. A lawsuit followed respective the insurance on the buildings, in which unpleasant relations between Wetherbee and some of the citizens were brought.

"Then followed a series of incendiary fires at, or near, the Center Village -- two barns and a store belonging to Asa Marsh, a barn belonging to Charles Darling, and the old meeting-house being burned between the time of the burning of Wetherbee's buildings and March 1851..."

A "Committee of Vigilance" was selected "to ferret out and bring to justice, if possible, the person or persons who have, or may hereafter, set fire, or attempt to set fire, to any building in this town."

Randall does not detail the reports made, "as no good can result from a revival of the remembrance of this period in the town's history.

However, it would appear that Joab's son, Ira, born Feb. 13, 1804, was involved in the "recent unpleasantness" with which his father's grave has become associated. Randall recalls that Ira died in January 1850, but he is not buried in Chesterfield.

Abijah was a Private (Mass. Reg. Pension issued 28 Jan 1819). He enlisted 4 Apr 1777 at Lanesboro [sic.], Mass. into Capt. Solomon Smith's Company, Col. Timothy Bigelow's Regt. of the Mass. Line for three years. He was in the battle of Burgoyne; marched to New Jersey, Battle of Monmouth; two engagements in Rhode Island; Battle of Saratoga; and at Valley Forge, February to June 1778.

In his pension application declaration sworn to on July 7, 1820, among other things he said that he was at the taking of Burgoyne; at two engagements on Rhode Island and at the Battle of Monmouth. He was also with Washington at Valley Forge during the terrible winter of 1777-8. Wetherbee came to Packersfield (Nelson) almost immediately after his discharge, remained there eight or nine years, and afterwards lived in Swansey, Gilsum, Surry, and Sullivan, NH.

Betsy May (or Mack) on _____ at Concord, VT. She was b. 18 Aug 1785 in Royalston, Mass., dau. of Benjamin and Hopewell (Dexter) May [or Mack], and d. on _____ at Granby, PQ

As has been reported through the pages of The Weatherbee Round-Up, genealogical research in Quebec is very difficult, if not impossible. The birth record of one daughter was retrieved from Vermont Vital Records. It is a matter of record that he served in the War of 1812 from Concord, VT. Census records indicate that Tryphena, probably 7th child was born in the United States. At the time of his marriage, Ira - the 9th child- claims to have been born in Granby. The 1861 census lists - if it can be believed - ages as of the NEXT birthday. We have already established that American census takers were not reknowned for accuracy. Were they any better in Quebec?

The names of the ? children which follow have been gleaned from deeds, church records and cemetery records. According to the 1825 census there were 4 boys and 2 girls under 14. We do not know when Samuel was married, but Betsy would have been 20 in 1805.

After marriage, they settled in Magog, PQ, where he gained quite a reputation as a trader. He seems to have moved to Granby about the same time that his brother Samuel-(#84) settled in Granby, and, according to the letter in The Weatherbee Round-Up (1987) 11:30, cited earlier, it was John who operated the hotel. Both John and Olive were involved in many land transactions in Granby. The 1825 census indicates no children were born to them.

UA-1 JONATHAN WETHERBEE was prob. born in the late 1750's, probably in Stow, Mass. The record of his birth was not retrieved and recorded. He is not mentioned in any father's will, and he did not follow the usual patterns of naming children for parents and grandparents. The following parents had children born during the 1750's, with wide gaps between the recorded births of children, and Jonathan could belong to any of these families:

Thomas-15 Phineas-17

Edward-18 Silas-21

There is no deed indicating that he purchased land at the time of his marriage, but he did purchase land in 1790 on his return from Woolrich, Maine. He died between 29 Dec 1792, when his will was signed, and early 1795, when his will was proved. A guardian was appointed for his oldest daughter on 10 May 1795. He m. UB-1 JACOB WETHERBEE definitely had ties to Mason, NH., but his ancestry is uncertain. He probably was born during the early 1760's, and poss. in Pepperill or vicinity, and died after 1820 in Whitehall, NY. He m. Anna Brown on 12 Aug 1782 in Townsend, Mass. She was b. on _____ at _____, dau. of _____ and _____ Brown, and died after 1820 in Whitehall, NY.

In 1818, he applied for a pension for war service, based on disability, claiming to have been struck on the head by a falling tree. His memory seems to have been affected, and he had difficulty remembering ages and dates. His wife was still living at the time of the pension application, but she was also disabled.

Interestingly, Aaron Fessenden, husband of Nancy Wetherbee, witnessed the pension application. Thus the question arises: What was the relationship between Jacob Wetherbee and Nancy Wetherbee Fessenden. All of these early families can easily have the phrase added: "Possibly other children of whom no record has been found."

We have thought that Nancy belonged to Timothy! Yes? No? I am looking at the dates of birth of Timothy's children: 1772, 1774, ca 1775, 1778, 1780, 1781, 1782, 1784, 1786, 1788/9?, 1792. With the customary 2 year spacing, she would appear to be a misfit in this family.

One other POSSIBLE family I am looking at: Moses [no number assigned], who is listed as a possible first son of David and Agnes, and probably born during the early 1740's. If he was a son of David's, and married during the early 1760's, it is within the realm of possibility that he was already married and settled, before David and Agnes moved from Pepperill to Mason. He lived in Groton, Mass after marriage. Groton, Townsend, Pepperill, and Mason all abut each other. Jacob and Nancy were both married in Townsend.

UC-1 SIMON WETHERBEE was prob. born during the early 1760's, and died after 1830 in, or near, Granville, NY. Where was he in 1785, when the selectmen of Mason, NH, paid someone to make his wife a pair of shoes? Where was he in 1789, when the selectmen were paying someone to keep his wife and child? Was he the Simon in Langdon, NH, in 1790 (1-0-2)? Was he the Simmonagus in Middletown, VT in 1800 with 2 adults over 45, and a female 16-26? In 1820, he appears to be in Whitehall, enumerated on the same page with his brother Jacob-#UB-1. In 1830, he appears to be in Granville, NY, with a wife (the name of Lydia appears as wife in an 1832 deed), and two young people: a girl 20-30, and a boy 15-19. Possibly, these are the children of his brother Jacob-#UB-1.

In Hemingway's Gazeteer of Vermont, we learn that his suicide was the first recorded suicide in the State of Vermont. It is of interest, even though we know nothing of the circumstances of his death other than the suicide, it is in the descendants of Joseph2 that the WETHERBEE AIL has been documented. Francis died at 34, and his three sons died at the ages of 37, 28, and 38 respectively. Dates of death were retrieved from gravestones, with no information concerning the cause of death.

Isaac was described as a bricklayer, and possibly is the person involved in several land transactions in Machias, Maine ca 1803. He is described in the WETHERBEE AIL treatise as having suffered from it, and died at 33. His will mentions his wife, mother, brothers and sisters-- but NO children.

His name is not mentioned in the WETHERBEE AIL treatise, but there was a petition for administration on his estate on 27 Sept. 1819 in Boston, indicating that he was not yet 31 at death, which raises suspicions. I have found no evidence that he ever married.

In the 1810 census, John is counted in Brutus Twp., Cayuga Co., N. Y., where on 7 Jan. 1811, he purchased 9 acres of land "already in his possession". He sold this land on 23 Jan. 1817 and on 6 Nov. 1818 purchased 56.90 acres more or less in Cato Twp. Cato was subsequently divided, and the Twp. of Victory was created.

In 1810 census: 50010/01010; 1820: 52310/00010. In 1830,Eunice was Head of Household, aged 50-60 herself, with one boy 15-20 and two boys 10-15. In 1840, I theorize that she is living with son John, ae 60-70.

Neither John nor Eunice left wills, so the property went to the widow and children. Between 1831 and 1841, the eight younger boys all quitclaimed a "release of all rights from the estate of the father John, deceased" to their older brother, Lyman.

The following narrative was sent to me, photocopied, several years ago by Dennis King Witherbee. The original writer interspersed shorthand with the prose, and I do not read shorthand. Occasionally I can guess at the shorthand via context. When I cannot, I will fill spaces with -----. It tells a bit about the times in the last century.

"Mr. Caleb Witherbee bought the house when Sophia Rice, daughter of Eli and Lucy Brigham Rice, married Caleb's son Dennis Witherbee. The young couple came here and for nearly fifty years this dear, little, old-school lady, refined, bright, and intelligent, now 92 years of age, lived in the old colonial homestead until it was purchased and torn down to make room for the new City Library.

"Speaking of the great number of Brigham's in Marlborough, Mrs. Dennis Witherbee once exclaimed, 'my mother was a Brigham, -----brothers married Brighams, father's ---- sister married a Brigham, my oldest brother married a Brigham, my niece married a Brigham, my husband's mother was a Brigham, two of her sisters married Brighams, three of her sons married Brighams; but my name was RICE.

"At 80 years of age and full of vivacity, she danced a minuet in the old Bigelow home to the tinkling accompaniment of an ancient spinet, and the late Sophronia Russell, daughter of Otis, joined his aunt in the old-time steps of long ago. She now resides with her daughter, Mrs. George M. Charlton.

"The Library opened January 18, 1871 with Miss Lizzie Wright as Librarian, and with Maria Witherbee as assistant.

"The first secretary of the Trustees was Nahum Witherbee, for many years Trial Justice before our Police Court was established. In report in 1871, we quote the following: 'The Board of Trustees met and organized immediately after their election, and proceeded with the arrangement ----- Library. Term expired in 1871.

"Harriet Brigham, a sister of Col. Abraham Gates' wife , Elizabeth Brigham, married Jabez Witherbee who took the Tavern --- lived here for many years---- death, and married Deacon Stephen R. Phelps. Jabez Witherbee was the father of Charles Witherbee who m. Adelaide Bigelow, dau. of Lambert. At the age of 43 he died from the effects of a fall while heroically engaged as asst. engineer of the Marlborough Fire Department, a man generally beloved and sincerely mourned. His wife and daugfhter Ella, who married Arthur Furlang, and daughter Adelaide, live in Somerville.

"Caleb Witherbee lived in Southborough, and came to Marlborough, married Hepsibah Brigham. They lived first on the north side of Williams Pond ---- Capt. Aaron Brigham and then moved to this house on the south side of the above pond or lake until Rev. Asa Packard left town. Caleb was, at that time, the only market man, bringing from all parts of this and all the neighboring towns, calves, lambs, pork, butter, eggs, poultry, and farmers' produce. Capt. Hastings , who lived even as far off as Sterling, used to bring his produce to Mr. W., who at that time of old election week, killed more calves than at any other time of the year, when he was known to have sent into Boston several loads of the above animals. To illustrate his sharpness as a trader, they tell the story that he had agreed with a man in Boston to bring him some nice dressed pigs On his way to Boston Market, he fell upon a man in Cambridge, who himself wanted to buy those same pigs, so, taking the man's shekels, he delivered the pigs and passed on to Boston, where he met with his disappointed customer. Mr. W. was equal to the emergency, and had his excuse ready: 'Well, sir, t'was the wrong time in the moon, sir, to kill your pigs, sir, they will shrink in the pot, sir. Next week will be the right time to kill them, sir.' Mr. W. was very gentlemanly and polite, and it is said that the use of the word 'sir', the way he used it, brought him a great many hundreds of dollars. He used to say that when it rains porridge, you must have your bowl 'right side up'.It was believed Caleb always kept his bowl 'right side up' and never would turn it over.

"When Rev. Asa Packard moved out of town, Mr. W. bought and moved into that large house, and so increased the purchase of land that he became a large farm owner, keeping over 35 cows there, besides ---- horses. He was a member of the West Church, where he and his family always attended, and was very prominent in town affairs, holding many town offices: selectman, overseer, etc. In those days, it was the custom to allow tax payers a 5% discount on all taxes paid previous to October 1. Mr. W. was one of the heaviest, if not the leading taxpayer in town, and ---- 5% ---- quite a discount. The story goes, that at one time,when he came to pay his tax, he was very delighted at the % returned, apparently thinking more of that than the 9% the collector received. He would laugh and say 'the bigger the tax, sir, the more % you get back, sir.' When he died, he left a large property to his seven children, six sons and one daughter. (My note: I find this statement confusing, because three daughters and one son predeceased their father. Unless there are other children we know nothing about, I can account for only five sons who outlived their father!!!!

"Jabez, who carried on the Gates Tavern till his own death; Brigham, who formerly kept the store at Jacob Fairbanks' Corner and who died in Flint, Mich. in 1847, pre-deceasing his father; Nathan, the well-known trial justice, who, after his father, carried on the homestead, and died there; John, who went into the banking business in Boston; and Wallace, who was one of the supp (sic) --- 'Big Shop', after his brother-in-law, Samuel Boyd."

Ethan Allen of Revolution fame. I am having a bit of trouble accepting this data at face value, because we believe that Patience was born in 1767, and it claims that Gen. Ethan was b. 10 Jan. 1737. 30 years doesn't leave much room for a 7th generation son. Is it possible that Patience was a daughter of Gen. Ethan, rather than a granddaughter????)

Ralph Chaffee owned a wood-working shop in Onondaga Valley, N. Y. where he made grain and corn cradles quite extensively. The machinery was driven by a 10 HP steam engine of primitive type, and was in operation as late as 1870. Born in a time of much illiteracy, and of poor parents, he educated himself as best he could, and became a self-made man. He was liberal in his religious views, discarding the then-existing dogmas and creeds for something tangible which he saw in all nature around him, and he always stood firm in his convictions. A great admirer of Ingersoll, he became noted as an evolutionist. He was an outstanding figure, far in advance of his time. Besides being a mechanic, he was a farmer, a geologist and an astronomer.

As a mechanic, he invented some improvements in saw mill machinery, and in road grading. He laid out many new roads, and graded others.

Ralph's father, David, had moved to Navarino in 1797 and in the middle of then forest, built a log home; the roof covered with ash bark, and floored with halves of logs. All but the youngest of his children were born here, and rocked in a cradle made of a hollowed log.

The 1810 census data (2-1-0-1-1//3-2-1-1-1) is not easily evaluated. It would appear that the male and female over 45 were his parents. The two in the 26-45 bracket would be Richard and Susannah. the 3 boys would be Asa, William and Hezekiah. BUT who are all of the young girls??? By comparing the 1810 census with 1820 (1-2-1-0-1//0-3-2-1-0), now in Galen, N. Y., it would seem that the 5 younger girls were all his!!! Yet in the 1800 census, he claims NO girls under 10.

119. ISAAC WETHERBEE[5], ARW, (Thomas[4]), was born 2 Sept. 1761 in Lunenburg, Mass. and died between 16 Sept. 1845 when his will was signed, and 31 Jan. 1846 when it was proved in Surrogate Court. In the will, he was "late of Salina (Onondaga County)". The HISTORY OF RINDGE notes the fact of his marriage to Hannah Knapp, but no date is given. No information on Hannah Knapp is presently available, but she was still living in 1800 at the time of Sally's birth. Sometime after that, he apparently married Sally (Wetherbee) Wood.

In 1790 he apparently is in Stillwater, N. Y. (1-1-3); in 1800, he was in Palatine, N. Y. where he operated a tavern (0-1-0-0-1/0-1-0-1-0); in 1810, he was somewhere in Montgomery County (town not given) (1-1-1-0-1//1-1-1-1-0). In 1840, he seems to be in Saratoga Springs, living with his son John, where he was counted as an ARW vet, aged 70-80.

His will mentions three daughters, and mentions his son, John, now deceased.

Cynthia Ann Waters Warn Weatherbee (spelling used by son, James Volney Pierce in this narrative), was born Oct. 16, 1807 at Broadalbin, Montgomery Co., N. Y. She was the 4th child of David and Polly Weatherbee. She married David Gibbs in April 1831, who died in 1832, leaving her a widow with one child.

She married James Pierce Jr., in 1834 at Felts Mills, Jefferson Co, New York, and immediately took up housekeeping at grandfather's.

Her father, David Weatherbee owned his property on the Mohawk River, and kept tavern as well as tilling his farm, for in those days all the travel was by flat boat, stage, or on foot, and houses of entertainment were all important along the great lines of travel, such as was the Mohawk Valley at that time; for the great tide of New England migration had set in in its westward march, and taverns with their big barns and sheds for protection of (live)stock were as important as was the old fashioned tavern with its big bar room and ample fire place, where the news from distant points were exchanged, and many times friendships formed that lasted through life. It was in the old country tavern on the Mohawk, that my mother passed her early girlhood days. The death of her father David Weatherbee was a tragedy that changed the current of the life of the family. He was felling timber for fuel, and the tree went down, struck against another breaking off a large branch which hung suspended for a few moments in the air, and then suddenly let go, cracking Grandfather Weatherbee's skull from which he died the next day in great agony.

His death broke up the family and the Homestead was sold, as the law did not protect the widow as it does now, but demanded that the property be sold or divided in kind to each heir, even to Grand Mother Weatherbee's silver spoons and table linen, which her own busy hands had spun and woven.

Cynthia worked for some years in the Mitten and Glove making at the little settlement called Gloversville, which industry has grown until its product and fame is now world-wide.

David Weatherbee was born May 31, 1761 (This narrative; 1764 per Lunenburg, Mass. Town Records; Gravestone says 1765; brother Isaac born Sept 2, 1761). We know nothing positively of the ancestry on this side except that it was of Dutch origin on both the Wetherbee (note that he changed the spelling here) and Tomlinson side and migrated into New York soon after the Revolution and located on the Mohawk.

Grandmother Wetherbee, before her marriage, was Polly Tomlinson, and from family events we feel certain she was born in Vermont and was married there, or else soon after coming to New York. It is understood that they are both buried at Broadalbin, Montgomery Co., New York.

The spelling of the surname is somewhat mixed. The name as Mother taught it to me was WETHERBEE. Uncle Luther spelled it WETHERBY. It had at one time been WEATHERBEE, and mother said the genuine Dutch was WEDERBEES.

The settlement was decidedly Dutch and wooden shoes were in evidence, and when a drinking bout was on and noggins were scarce, they did not hesitate to drink (to) the health of a guest from the wooden shoe. A Dutchmaiden's shoe was considered the populer tipple mug, especially if she was built on the Dutch plan - ___?___ feet - and weighed 260 pounds.

Mother used to laughingly say that there were kinds of Dutch on the Mohawk that were clearly distinguishable:

"The Amsterdam Dutch"

"The Rotterdam Dutch" and

"The other Dam Dutch"

Mother received a good common school education as the times afforded. She was an exceedingly fine penman, and her letters were models in every way, and the chirography as fine, delicate, and true as copperplate; her favorite text for copy book lesson was:

"He that in writing would improve,
Must first with writing fall in love."

She married David Gibbs in 1831, and moved to Felts Mills in Jefferson Co., N . Y., where he died in 1832 and left her a widow with a baby girl, Hannah Mary, and with scant means, but she energetically took up making her own living at any thing that meant compensation, for hard work did not discourage her in the least, so long as there was plenty to do and furnish honest bread and butter for herself and baby girl. She owned her little home in the lumber village, and was warned to work the Road Tax. To the surprise of the Road Overseer, the widow Gibbs appeared with a garden hoe on her shoulder, ready to work out her tax, which she succeeded in doing in about 5 minutes, and was declared exempt from further service on the Public Highway in Felts Mills.

She married James Pierce Jr. at her home in Felts Mills in 1834, and immediately moved to Grandfather Pierce's in Rutland. Mother was a small woman and did not weigh only about 90 pounds for many years, and her greatest weight never exceeded 125 pounds. She was the hardest working woman I ever knew; she never let up as long as there was anything to do. For many years, she never touched her pillow till midnight, and was ready to commence with the sun in her daily rounds. With cows to milk morning and night, cheese to make, meals to cook, admitted of no loafing at Father's farm, for both father and mother were ambitious to get ahead.

She spun and wove nearly all the every-day clothing stuff worn by the family, including her own woolen dresses, as well as table linen, wool and linen sheets, towels, and tow cloth for odd boys pants, and linen shirts for every day wear.

She dyed her own materials and wove all her own rag and wool carpets. Her linen shoulder kerchiefs were delicate in weave and coloring, and much of her handwork was still in the old home at the time of her death.

She was possessed of a wonderful fund of cheerfulness under the most trying of circumstances, and was usually humming some favorite melody over her work. She was a good mate to father in story telling, and those she told invariably had a telling point at the climax; her sense of humor and imitation were perfect, and it was always a treat for us children to get some of our schoolmates in for an evening and have Mother turn loose her fun, especially if she donned her old poke bonnet, and short-waisted gown of her wedding days.

She was adept at repartee, and a joke at her expense was usually paid back with heavy interest. It was a merry table when a party of relatives came and took dinner, for father delighted in making some allusion to something that had happened mother in addressing some of the cousins and set his net for a table full of fun. She always took time to read some each day, and kept informed on the leading topics of the day, and when her work was such that she could listen, Father would read to her by the hour and discuss the main topics, and especially do I remember his reading "Col. John C. Fremont's Exploration of the Rocky Mountains", published in the weekly WATERTOWN JEFFERSONIAN. The SATURDAY EVENING POST became the household paper for years, and an early magazine was THE LADIES REPOSITORY.

She and father were in hearty sympathy in all their efforts, seldom a disagreement. Theyn were devotedly attached to each other, and Father invariably invited Mother to accompany him on his trips on business to give her an outing and he have the pleasure of her company. After Father's death, she remained in the Old Homestead on the farm in Oswego Town, and breathed her last in the the same room and bed as Father did, and buried by Father's side in the 'Rural Cemetery' on the old home farm, aged 90 years. Old age.

She was a loving and tender mother, a kind and considerate neighbor, a genuine helpmate to her husband, and her hands were full of charity and kind deeds

131. TARBELL WILLARD5, (Oliver4), was born 22 April 1767 in Wendell, Franklin Co., Mass., and died ??? . One DAR archivist copied the gravestone as 20 June1831; another DAR read 30 June 1831. I read it as 1832. Surrogate papers at the Court House state that he died "on or about 22 June 1832." I favor the latter date in view of the fact that he was involved in 3 real estate transactions about that time. Two of the deeds were dated 12 May 1831 and 1 May 1829. These 2 were recorded on 8 Sept. 1831 and 6 Sept. 1831 respectively. HOWEVER!!!!!! the 3rd was dated 19 August 1831, and recorded 6 Sept. 1831. It seems highly unlikely that he would be buying land in August, if he had died in June??

He m. (1) Mary _____prob. ca 1788, and prob. in or near Kingsbury, N.Y. Nothing further is known of her. It would appear that she was the mother of AT LEAST the first 5 children, as the DeLaMater Genealogy states that Mary was the mother of Nancy.

He m. (2) Betsey Goodell; little is known of her other than that she died 27 or 29 Sept. 1860 ae 75 (the 2 DAR persons recorded different dates). Both Betsey and Tarbell are buried in the West Clarkson (N. Y.) cemetery.

In 1800, Tarbell was counted in Hartford, Washington Co., N.Y. (1-1-0-1-0//3-0-0-1-0). He was still in Hartford in 1810 (0-1-1-1-0// 2-2-2-1-0). By 1820, he was in Manlius, N. Y. (0-1-1-0-1//3-1-0-1-0). By 1830 he was in Clarkson, at which time he had 2 boys 5 but under 9, and 2 girls 15 but under 19.. At the time of his death, he left 10 living children.

He was still Head of Household in the 1840 census. In the will, he refers to his wife, but not by name. Census data infers the possibility of 2 wives. In 1810, he is in Kingsbury, N. Y. (1-0-1-0-0//5-0-1-0-0). In 1840, he is 60-70, and his wife is 40-50.

The oldest 6 children obviously born in Kingsbury, N. Y. Others MAY have been born there, assuming that he remained there until after his father's death. All of the marriages are recorded from Ripley County, Indiana, beginning in 1822.

Heirs who signed receipts for their shares of his estate were: Reuben Lacock (Marinda); Harvey Jarvis (???); George Craig (Marilla); Hosea; Thomas Bassett (Julia); David Craig (Phebe); John Wilson (Rhoda); Jesse Miles (Nancy); Samuel Jolly, as gdn for Lafayette; Robert Pendergast (Lucinda); and Joab Lacock (Maria); and Alva as executor.

Harvey Jarvis MAY have been a 2nd husband of Ann, whose original husband, Isaac Watson was not named as an heir.

142. SOLOMON WETHERBEE[5] (Reuben[4]) was bpt. 29 Oct. 1775 at Stow, Mass., (GR indicates he was b. 1773) and is most likely the one who died in 1838, and is buried in the Elmwood Cemetery in Burlington, VT. He m. Sarah Hurd on_____ at _____. She was born in 1781 (GR) and died in 1856 (GR). She also is buried in the Elmwood Cemetery

He apparently was counted in Leverett, Mass., in 1810, with himself and wife 26 - 45, and with three girls under 10. In 1820, the name SOLOMON appears in the census listing for Brandon, VT., but the tally line is totally blank. In 1830, Solomon is counted in Burlington, with five girls in the household under 20 (two 15-19; two 5-9; and one under 5). The one under 5 was Hannah (1826-1831). Another daughter was Sophia C., who m. Frederick VanSicklin on 12 March 1845 in Burlington, and with whom Sarah (Hurd) was living in 1850.

Since they were apparently in Brandon in 1820, they were in the right place at the right time to be the parents of Alonzo and Franklin J., whom we have puzzled over for several years, BUT, no sons are indicated in the 1830 census.

I obtained a copy of his will, and I find it very confusing. There are a number of names I have been unable to place. Furthermore, the punctuation -- or rather, the lack of it -- makes it difficult to tell where one thought ends and the next begins. I shall try to transcribe it verbatim, and maybe some of you can help to decipher it.

Danforth Wetherby (Seal)

The following narrative was obtained by Beverley White from the College Hill Historical Society a few years ago, and is very interesting. She feels that it would be appropriate to include it here for the "illumination" of the cousins.

WITHERBY PLACE

"I feel it an honor to have been requested to write a brief story, as I know it, of the Witherby Estate on College Hill, and of the staunch, honorable members of that splendid family whose simple lives are fine examples of true courage, faithful adherance to duty, loving sympathy, neighborliness and sincere fealty to man and God. I am only a step-child in one of its generations but very proud of this connection with one of the finest of the Witherby descendants

I regret that I have little data in respect to Danforth Witherby, pioneer head of the family in this section, except the assurance that he was an upright gentleman, a churchman, a devoted father, an excellent farmer, and an intelligent speaker.

In the late 1700's Danforth Witherby and his wife came to the mid-west from their native Vermont. He was installed as minister in the Methodist Church in Oxford, Ohio, and became an ardent circuit-rider, preaching the Gospel in towns and hamlets within a wide radius. On one of these missions, "Preacher Witherby" (so called) rode horseback through Miami Township. As his horse cantered down Colerain Pike (Belmont Avenue), the young man stopped, arrested by the beauty of the fertile, rolling countryside. On his return homeward, he again scanned this tract of land and determined that "here he would like to pitch his tent". Soon afterward he carefully investigated and purchased (I do not know from whom) one hundred acres of fine farmland - fifty acres to the north and fifty acres to the south of Colerain Pike, east of North Bend Road. This was in the year 1799.

Two years later, with little help. he built his one and a half story log cabin with "lean-to"; its timbers were hewn from giant trees that grew in his own valley woodland extending to Kirby Road back of the cabin, which stood facing the north on the crest of the high hill some distance south of Colerain Pike. When the cabin was completed in 1802, he brought his family from Oxford to live in it.. All water needed had to be carried from the deep well at the foot of the steep climb, so in 1806, "Preacher Witherby" moved the cabin down close to the never-failing well (still in constant use). Its water, icy cold and crystal clear, is supplied by a spring, one of the principal sources of Mill Creek located just south of Belmont Avenue near the east line of the Witherby tract. Times there were when the lowlands became flooded from this gushing spring and a pond was dug in the pasture lot west of the dooryard lane to catch the overflow for the watering of stock. I personally remember that during a number of disastrous droughts, this sparkling water was freely offered to farmers in the vicinity and was instrumental in saving the lives of stock and in keeping alive the drooping gardens of the neighbors.

The cabin was turned to face the west in its new location, and in 1839, a two story addition facing north was built of brick. This new part of the house consisted of four rooms and a small front portico.. The homestead then belonged to Branch Witherby, son of Danforth. Both "parlors" opened into the big, square cabin room. Its center doors to the east and west opposite one another flanked on either side by windows, opened onto broad, brick-paved porches with square wooden pillars, and there was an entrance from the west porch into the west "parlor". A cunning boxed stairway in the northeast corner of the room, leading to the half-story room above, was extended to reach the added bedchambers above. Like all houses of this period, each floor had several levels. At this time, the cabin was covered with cement and the lean-to replaced by a small kitchen which opened to the east into an enormous room 30′ x 30′, built to accomodate at threshing time the farmers of the vicinity who assisted at this busy season. The men worked in the fields and their women folk helped with the cooking and serving of the "multitude". In those blessed good old times, a wonderful community spirit prevailed and reciprocity was the watchword. All neighbors rejoiced in any good fortune that befell one of their number and sympathized with him in the hour of mischance.

There were broad fireplaces in the east parlor and the room above, and there were shallow shelved closets on either side of the high mantle. The fire in the cabin room, which now became the family dining room, was never allowed to go out from the first frost until the end of the winter season, the great green backlog dragged by horses from the woods in the rear of property at its beginning.

When Branch Witherby and his wife retired from the farm, it was leased to a dairyman, and barns stabling sixty-five head of cattle were built about one hundred and fifty feet southwest of the house. These barns were destroyed by lightning and the splendid dining room built for use at threshing season was torn down by the lessee, who found it cheaper to do that than to put on a needed new roof.

As stated, my information about Danforth Witherby, the pioneer is limited. I do not know how many children were born to him and his wife; am only familiar with items concerning three sons: Luther, for whom my father had high regard and whose daughters, Phoebe who did not marry, and Margaret Witherby Grogan of Mt. Airy were frequent visitors in our home when I was young. We were fond of both and at one time, I typed for "Cousin Phoebe" an intensely interesting authentic article citing facts in the family history, which was published in the Cincinnati Enquirer. I have reason to believe that there may be descendants of this "Luther Witherby" branch still in Cincinnati.

OLIVER studied law at Oxford; then in 1849 joined the covered wagon caravan going from Ohio to Southern California, lured by hthe "gold rush". These "forty-niners" form the topic for many interesting stories of that hectic period. Oliver immediately began his law practice in San Diego, soon became a prominent citizen, and, as Judge on the bench, reached an enviable reputation for fairness and strict adherence to justice. He acquired great wealth and much valuable property in that city. He did not marry and remained in San Diego, and, though planning many "home-comings", he did not return to his birthplace. A stroke of apoplexy carried him away at the advanced age of ninety-five. At the San Diego Museum, there is on exhibit an old desk and large leather chair from the office of Judge Oliver Witherby, which have been preserved as a precious relic to his memory.

Thomas Branch Witherby (always called "Branch") became a very successful farmer on his father's land, and at the death of Danforth, acquired the homestead and the greater portion of the acreage. In the late 1820's, he married Mercy VanZandt, said to have been a beautiful girl, whose pioneer forebears had settled in Mt. Pleasant (Mt. Healthy), and for which family VanZandt Road was named. The newly-weds were domiciled in the Witherby cabin and there were born their two sons and two daughters: John Gano, the eldest, was named for their good friend and physician, and was nicknamed "Doc". When he had finished his education in a good private school, he accepted a position with the Louisville & Nashville Railway Company, with headquarters in Kentucky. There, in the late 1860's, he married a charming Covington girl, whose surname I have forgotten, but was shortly bereaved, his bride surviving their honeymoon only a fortnight. Some years later (about 1881), he married again, his bride, Mollie Taylor of Covington, who was many years his junior and strangely anough, a namesake of his first wife. At the urgent invitation of Judge Oliver Witherby, they went directly to live with him in San Diego. Gano engaged in the real estate business, and he and his wife remained in the home of Uncle Oliver until his passing. Soon afterward, they removed to Los Angeles where they established a home of their own. Gano attained the age of ninety-three, and died there. He was still active although he had retired from business. His wife retained their pleasant residence and was greatly beloved by a host of friends. She was deeply interested in the Christian Church, and though entirely blind for the last four years of her life, was a constant attendant and earnest churchworker. I knew her well, and was grieved at her passing in June 1946, at the age of eighty eight. Both Gano and his wife, at their request, were cremated in Los Angeles, and their ashes sent to me for burial in the Witherby plot at beautiful Spring Grove, where they repose at the foot of Grandma Witherby's little mound. There were no children born of this union.

Rosalinda, second child of Branch and Mercy Witherby, was married (about 1856) to William Bagley, widower, who owned, and lived with his three young daughters, Ella, Ida, and Susan in, the house now occupied by Harry G. Pounsford. Here their only child, Thomas Keys Bagley, was born. Following the death of her husband, and the eventual marriage of his above-mentioned daughters, this property was sold (I believe to Captain Tweed). Rosalinda and her young son then removed to the house on the north side of Belmont Avenue, east of the North Bend Road, where her parents joined them in the late 1870's

Both Branch and Mercy Witherby lived to be octogenarians, and were accorded tenderest care in their declining years by their daughter and her household. Rosalinda continued in the family tradition of longevity, dying at an advanced age.

Marietta Witherby married in the 1850's. Her husband, George Shiveley came from St Louis, Missouri to Cincinnati and purchased from his father-in-law several acres of land opposite the Witherby homestead. There he built the substantial brick residence which still occupies that site. They had no children. Marietta died in this home in 1899, and when George Shiveley passed away some years later, he willed his property to a niece, Charlotte Shiveley, who came from California to occupy the house, but remained only a short time. The place was sold, and she returned to the West.

Freeman Cary, the youngest child, was born in 1839, and was named for his maternal cousin, founder of Farmers College. He attended, as did all the Witherby children, a private school on the Hill, and was graduated from Farmers College in 1857. He remained on the farm, assisting his father in its operation, and in the manufacture of barrel staves and bricks. There was a fully equipped brick plant on the premises. When Farmers College was erected in 1848, Branch Witherby contributed to the College all the brick used in its construction, and, I am pleased to here interpose the fact that my maternal grandfather, John H. Price, who then owned the tract of land lying on the north side of Cedar Avenue from Belmont Avenue to the west line of the present Bahmann property and lived with his family in the house now known as the Robert Simpson homestead, gave as his contribution to the College, all the paint, and supplied the labor for applying it on the buildings.

Freeman joined the Navy at the commencement of the Civil War. His ship, the "Indianola" was blown to bits soon after, in the Ohio River. He survived this tragic event, but suffered a severe attack of typhoid resulting from his dangerous experience of exposure as he was thrown into the murky waters of the Ohio, and exhausted when miraculously rescued. Following this illness, he was unable to rejoin the Navy, and a substitute was paid to take his place in the ranks.

In 1874, he became connected with the Cincinnato Gas Company and the Matthew Addy Company of Cincinnati, and in 1883 married my mother, Mollie Price Lishawa, widow of Philip N. Lishawa, in a double wedding; the other couple in this unusual ceremony, my mother's sister, Eva Price, and my own father's brother, George W.Lishawa. I was an infant when I lost my father in 1869. I therefore happily accepted my step-father, to whom I was devoted and for the best of reasons-- for my girlhood was a joyous chapter in my life due to his kindly indulgence

In 1895, because of his failing eyesight, he was ordered by his physicians to go to the country to live where he could have green grass under his feet, instead of glaring city pavement. They hoped that with greenery all about him, to preserve the tiny bit of sight he then had. He was delighted to go back to his birthplace which he had inherited. Familiar with its surroundings, and even with the rise and fall of the ground, he roamed at will over his acreage. Though he became totally blind, his sensitive fingers made it possible for him to accomplish many things. Our neighbors marvelled to watch him repair fence, milk cows, and work in his garden - in which the straight rows of corn and beanstalks were made so by his crawling along a board of proper width, and planting on either side - thus evidencing his ingenuity and skill.

My mother, though born and reared on College Hill and graduating in 1859 from the Ohio Female College, which occupied the site of the present Cincinnati Sanitarium, had lived in the city for the intervening years and had always contended that "the country was a lovely place to go through", but my father's contentment in it was worth the sacrifice. Knowing her attitude, however, my father supplied every possible convenience and it was then that he had the two story frame building detached from the south end of the original cabin and moved to the rear for laundry and storage use, and built the comfortable, airy kitchen, with maid's room above. This proved a comfort, and mother soon adjusted herself to farm life. In this dear home, my daughter, Dorothy Witherby Ferry was reared and so loves her associations with College Hill, that to her, the skies are bluer, the sunshine more golden, the grass greener, the church bells more musical, and folks more gracious that in any other place in the wide world. Precious memories of my own childhood spent there, make me thoroughly agree with her!

Because Freeman remained on the farm and assisted his father materially for years, he inherited two-fifths of the estate, his brother and sisters, each one-fifth. Gano's portion was sold by him to the late Harris M. Benedict, who built his home just west of the homestead. His widow, Florence McCrea Benedict, still resides there.

Rosalinda's fifth was willed to her son, Thomas Keys Bagley, the only grandchild of Branch and Mercy Witherby. He was born in April 1858, and attended Farmers College where his fine penmanship and flair for drawing was developed. He was of a decidedly artistic temperment and was most successful in commercial art, his clever cartoons bringing him into a wide newspaper field. In the 1880's he married one of the attractive daughters of Prof. and Mrs. Aiken of Mt. Healthy and took his bride to live in his mother's home. There their two daughters, Ruth and Helen, were born and reared. After a brief illness in 1932, "Tom Bagley" passed away. His widow, Carrie Aiken Bagley and his daughters have remained in his homestead. I know nothing of the origin of this house except that it was built on Witherby property many years ago and that its exterior is unchanged. Modern improvements have been added in the inside of the comfortable house and its well known hospitality has been maintained by those within it.

When Marietta Shiveley died, she bequeathed her fifth to her brother Freeman. At his passing in 1917, his three-fifths of the estate was willed by him to me, his step-daughter. I regret that circumstancees made it impossible for me to hold this property more than a few years. Parcels of land were sold from time to time and the homestead was deeded by me in 1920 to Reno Runck to whom I am grateful for his interest in preserving and beautifying this spot so dear to me and mine.

Memory has led me back through old and familiar scenes in my long life span. We have trod the well-worn flagstone path from the rusty rails of the old narrow gauge railroad, crossed the rustic bridge that spanned the tiny stream that flowed through our "front yard", picked our way up the old muddy lane, leaned over the rail fence into the "pond lot", drank from the bright tin cup that once hung on the old-fashioned pump at the well, sat on the lower portico step, entertained in the parlor with its old-time sofas and chairs, mended the fire in the cabin room where in the big open grate glowed the huge backlog, climbed the small stairway, stooped to look out of the low window in the half-story room at the old smoke house and grape arbor, gazed from the upper front windows upon the tall maple trees planted by my father when a lad - eleven of them - in a straight row across the front of the place just inside the rail fence, whose welcome shade lured passers-by to halt and rest on torrid days - and then retraced our steps into the present. It was a pleasant journey and brought smiles and tears as I reviewed the past.

Memory cannot unravel all the knots in the skein of events but things recorded here are as nearly correct as I can make them with authentic papers beyond my reach, now that my possessions are scattered from Georgia to Rhode Island. This brief sketch of a fine family will be the last effort made to preserve the name, perhaps, as my step-father was last in the line of at least his branch of Witherby descendants.

He bought 30 acres of land in Fabius, Onondaga County, part of Lot 15 in the original division on 24 Oct. 1814. This deed was NOT recorded until 25 Nov. 1822. A GRANTOR's deed was recorded in 1824, wherein Richard with wife OLIVE sold land in Fabius. They were in Fabius in 1820--(2-0-1-1-0//1-0-0-1-0), where their first 4 children were born:

This is presumably the Village of ITALY in Yates County, where he was counted in 1830 with 3 girls and 1 boy under 5; 1 of each 5 but under 10; and 2 boys 10 but under 15. Richard, with SALLY, his wife, sold land in Yates County on 24 Jan. 1839. Both of these deeds were recorded 12 Feb. 1839. By 1840, he is counted in Wirt Twp, Allegany County.

SALLY may have died in 1851; and sometime after that, at least some of the family removed to Clinton County, Michigan.

Land records also state that David and ANN Weatherby were parents of Richard Duncan Weatherby. The WEATHERBY Family Register states that NANCY Campbell was the wife of David Weatherby. 192. SOLOTHIEL WETHERBEE[5], (Timothy[4]), was born ca 1775 (allegedly 75 in 1850), and died sometime after 1850, possibly in Westerlo, N. Y. where he was living in 1850. His wife's name was Roxana in Lancaster Town Records. She died 10 March 1823 at Lancaster, of consumption.

Could his name been Solothiel Josiah, or Josiah Solothiel????? We have never identified the "Josiah" who married Mrs. Roxalany Allen on 8 Sept. 1798 in Gill, Franklin County, Mass. It is interesting that two of the boys were given "Allen" as a middle name!!!

Another puzzling fact, is that one after another, all of their children were turned over to the Shakers to raise, even though Roxana continued to bear children right until 14 months before her death. The births of the youngest 8 children, beginning with Aurelia, were recorded from Lancaster. The oldest 4 were presumably born elsewhere, some possibly in Mason, N.H., where he was taxed in 1801 and 1802.

Yet another puzzle is that he was counted in Westerlo, N. Y., in 1830, with a new and much younger wife, and a boy and girl each under 5; but NONE OF THE CHILDREN OF THE FIRST MARRIAGE ARE WITH HIM!!!!!!!! Issue

He married (1) Polly Worcester on Dec 4, 1800 at Weathersfield. She was born Feb. 4 1777 at Weathersfield, dau of Benjamin and Molly (Wood) Worcester, and died Oct. 18, 1824 in or near Weathersfield, VT. She is buried in the Ascutneyville Cemetery.

Notes from Mary K. Witherbee:

"I have not been able to learn anything about David[5] except what his grandson, George Webster Witherbee, remembered hearing from his grandfather, David Wetherbee. He knew that he was married twice and had two sons-- David (born) at Moriah, and Charles (born) at Ticonderoga. It was his understanding that Polly, whom he remembered as Polly "Bird", was an Indian woman. Research has shown that Polly was probably not the Indian grandmother,although at this time there is still the possibility that her mother, Molly Wood, wife Of Benjamin Worcester, may have been. As there are Indian features in many descendants, there certainly must have been an Indian in the background. The other possibility is Anna, wife of Lemuel Dean, and mother of Harriet Dean. Dartmouth College, at Hanover, N. H. is not far upriver from Weathersfield. It was chartered in 1769 as an outgrowth of Eleazer Wheelock's Indian Charity School in Lebanon, Conn., so it is to be imagined that there were a number of literate Indian maidens in the area. Anna signed her name jointly with Lemuel in an 1838 deed instead of making her mark as many people still did in those days. Details of the lives of these women have not been passed along to later generations, unfortunately.

"David was probably a farmer and carpenter, or housewright, as were the generations to follow. We do not know how long he lived on Witherbee Hill near Mineville with David and Harriet before his death in 1860. He is buried alongside Lemuel Dean, who was buried there is 1853."

198. JOHN P.(Patten???) WETHERBEE[5] (Jacob[4]), is apparently the eldest son of Jacob, and was born prior to 1793, and most prob. during the late 1780's, and died after 1847. Nothing further is known of him at this time.

His parents owned real estate, but neither left wills. Beginning in 1841, John P. began quitclaiming 1/7th shares of his parents real estate: to Waldron S of Dresden on 30 Dec. 1841; to John Ingalls of Dresden on 9 Dec. 1841; to Calvin Pease of Whitehall on 26 Mar. 1842; to Charles II of Haverhill, Grafton Co., N. H. on 1 July 1842, which land he immediately transferred to John Ingalls on the same day; and to Lucian B,. Swallow of Dresden on 13 March 1847. Francis m. (2) Cornelia Martha Graves on 1837 in Paris, Oneida Co., N. Y. She was born on 13 Sept. 1819 in Paris, Oneida Co., N Y., dau of Hobart Jr. and Martha (Hickox) Graves, and died after 1888 prob. in St. Paul, Minn.

Francis was commissioned High Sheriff of Tioga County in 1831 by the Penna. Governor, and served until 1834. It is thought that his first wife may have died about this time. According to family records, his daughter, Martha was born in Knoxville, Tioga Co., and all of the others were born in Covington, Tioga Co. He moved to Covington between 1841 and 1845, where he ran the Elk Horn (saw) Mill from 1846 to 1848. Daughter, Mary, of the first marriage is mentioned in Bigelow Methodist Church Records in Portsmouth, Ohio, in 1854. Based upon a letter in the possession of the family, he was in Lacrosse, Wisc. in 1879. His 30 May 1880 death in Rochester, Minn. was caused by "Nervous Prostration" (???? stroke). His widow, Cornelia, was listed in several subsequent City Directories in St. Paul, appearing for the final time in the 1886/7 Directory, which infers that she MAY have died about that time.

m. Hon. Addison Gardner Foster on 19 Nov. 1863 in Wabasha, Wisc.

Addison Gardner Foster was born 28 January 1837 at Belchertown, Mass., and is an 8th generation descendant of Reginald Foster, who landed in Ipswich, Mass. in 1638. His father, Samuel Foster, was a thrifty village merchant, and his mother was a descendant of the Gardner family, who came over from England shortly after the landing of the Mayflower. When thirteen years of age, Mr. Foster accompanied his parents to Sheboygan, Wisc., where his father, in 1850, secured land and began to clear it for a farm. that was where Mr. Foster got his first experience in logging. Afterward he and his brother started for Pike's Peak, but they turned back, and he taught school in Missouri, and afterward returned home and went to Wabasha, Minn. In 1863, he married Martha Ann Wetherby, of Pennsylvania, who was then visiting Wabasha. He held the offices of county surveyor and county auditor. Afterward he was engaged in forwarding and commission business in Lake City and Red Wing, Minn. In 1877 he formed a partnership with Col. C. W. Griggs in the fuel and contracting business.

In 1879 they formed the Beaver Dam Lumber Company and in 1884 incorporated the Lehigh Coal and Iron Company. He continued as a leading officer in those companies, and as vice-president of the St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber Company which was organized in 1888, after which time hemade his home in Tacoma. At the time of the publication of the FOSTER GENEALOGY, his wife and two sons were living; Harry Gardner Foster was engaged in the lumber and shingle business; and Addison Foster was a student at Yale College.

Mr. Foster took an active part in the management of the company affairs, and often put on his hob-nail boots and spent days at a time in examining and sizing up logs the company wished to buy

While a resident of St. Paul, Mr. Foster was a neighbor of, and ward worker with, Sen. C. K. Davis. It was then that he received his first training in the game of politics, and he was no novice at the game. He managed the successful Congressional campaign of S. P. Snyder in the 4th Minnesota district, was instrumental in the election of Hon. L. F. Hubbard as governor of Minnesota, brought out and elected Dar S. Hall to Congress, and was the leading supporter of Sen. McMillan of Minnesota in all his campaigns.

Mr. Foster was elected to the high office of U. S. Senator in 1899 by both branches of the Washington legislature in joint session.

APPENDIX A

This transcription is from "A TREATISE ON THE DISEASES OF THE NERVOUS SYSTEM", by William Hammond --- 1876, pages 526 - 530.

Present-day researchers feel that this narrative describes the condition known today as AMYOTROPHIC LATERAL SCLEROSIS (ALS); also nicknamed "the Lou Gehrig Disease; and also variously referred to as "creeping paralysis" or "Palsy".

MUSCULAR ATROPHY

"Among my ancestors and their neighbors, this disease was known as the "WETHERBEE AIL"; definitely, it is a wasting or consumption of the muscles. Until recently, it has been considered incurable; the cause is unknown, but generally the first intimation the patient has of it is a shock. My opinion is that its inception is some time previous, but not noticed. From and ever after the shock its progress and character are remarkable, the various symptoms and details of which will be seen in the individual cases I shall attempt to describe.

"I have been unable to trace the history of this disease beyond my greatgrandfather, EPHRAIM WETHERBEE, and all I know of his history is that he had six sons and two daughters, and that he died of the "Wetherbee Ail". His son, ASA, experienced a sensation in the calves of both legs, as if struck smartly with a whip. I do not know how long he lived, but he failed from that time. ISAAC,, another son, had the same disease, but I have been unable to learn any particulars in his case. Two others, CALVIN and JOSEPH, the latter my grandfather, died in South America of diseases prevalent in that country; I can say nothing of the others. HANNAH WETHERBEE, one of the daughters. I can remember to have seen her walk feebly, and soon after confined to her room nearly helpless, and to have seen her coffin lid screwed on. SARAH married a Mr. Paine; she had had seven children and was in good health. She was walking on the street, and felt as if hit in the calf of the leg by a stone, and turned, expecting to see the boy who threw it, but concluded that was not the case. She lost the spring of her toes, as she expressed it, and never walked naturally afterward. She told her family on her arrival home, that she had the "Wetherbee Ail". She lived seven years and had the best of care and medical treatment. She had two children during her sickness; the last a son after she had become perfectly helpless, and only nine months previous to her death She had nine chilldren; one died young. The others are living and in good health. I had these particulars from the eldest, Sarah Paine, who married Spaulding, and is nearly sixty years of age; has generally been in good health, excepting during some three years she suffered from nervousness and lost all her strength; but she has recovered, and for some twenty years has been well. She had a son and a daughter who both married; the daughter died of consumption of the blood; the son is in good health. Mrs. Spaulding names other cases, but can give no particulars except that one felt the first shock in the foot under the shoe-buckle, such as were worn a hundred years ago; another was attacked in the brain and lived but twenty-four hours (I should not call that a case of muscular atrophy); another requested that an examination should be made after his death, which being done, showed that all his muscles were consumed.

"JOSEPH WETHERBEE, my grandfather, had a son and a daughter; the daughter, LUCY, married a Mr. Pitts; she had only a son and a daughter. The daughter lived some twenty years and died of some sudden and severe sickness. The son, J. Henry Pitts, is still living, and is about forty three years of age; has suffered much from rheumatic fever. AUNT LUCY, herself, enjoyed good health till about fifty years old when she died. She believed there was nothing peculiar in the so=called "Wetherbee Ail". Her last sickness was of an entire;y different character.

"I now come to the case of my father. He was of a robust build, had a strong constitution and was temperate, drinking no spirits since my remembrance, probably not much before; used some tobacco at times; and worked hard at different trades, as shoemaking, farming, and chairmaking. When about thirty-nine, he remarked that he was growing old fast, and some of the neighbors discovered a slight limp in his walk. I was not living at home at that time, and do not know much of his conditionn in the early stages of his sickness, He first discovered a weakness in the right thumb, being unable to open his pocket-knife in the usual way. The right hand and arm lost strength faster than the left; and contrarily, the left leg failed the fastest. He thought the direct cause of his lameness to be over-exertion in harvesting a crop of meadow-hay, in August or September, 1844. He continued to labor about a year. The progress of the disease was rapid; he suffered somewhat from painful muscular contractions or cramps; otherwise he had but little pain. The larger muscles of the arms and legs became soft and flabby, and diminished in size. In November, 1845, he cut his fingers in the shop, went home, and never entered the shop again. He got about the house with crutches several months, comfortably. During the following winter, he had rheumatic fever. In the summer of 1846 he became nearly helpless. Mother and myself lifted him to his feet, and to and from his bed and chair. The kidneys were also affected, and the lungs were very weak. So he wasted in flesh and strength, and died on the 10th of October 1846, a little more than two years after the hard work in the meadow.

"I can say no more of the above cases, except that the persons were native-born Americans. Mrs. Spaulding thinks we descended from the English. I do not learn that there was dissipation in any branch of the family. There are branches of the family in which nothing of the kind appears; there is nothing of it in the Wetherbee's in Scotland. Mrs. Spaulding thinks the disease was in the family previous to the time of my great-grandfather.

"I was born on July 23, 1831, in Westminster, Massachusetts. At the age of five I was thrown from a wagon and got a scalp mark from the horseshoe. At the age of six I remember an aching head and discharge at the ear; at seven or eight, a bad cold, with soreness of chest, a cough, and hot gin-sling, none of which were in the least agreeable. When eleven I was badly poisoned with ivy, although before that, I had handled it with impunity; at fourteen another cold and affected chest and lungs, with ulcers, or something like, in the head.

"From this time to the age of twenty-one, I had some sick-headache; got sick three times from trying to paint outside work, got poisoned with ivy and dog-wood, but did not lose many meals or much sleep. I worked at chairmaking and had no lack of out-door exercise. As I have spoken of shocks being felt by some of the above-named persons, I am reminded that I felt one on a day in the summer that I was sixteen; I felt as if struck with a piece of board on the left shoulder, head, and neck. I looked around for the cause, but saw no one; I was not hit nor hurt; have felt something similar since, but as nothing came of it I thought no more about it. At twenty one, I had a lame stomach, partly from work, and partly from getting a blow in the breast. One plaster set that all right, and I have had nothing of it since.

"In January, 1855, I had lameness in the right wrist and hand, attributing it to a slight, and at the time unnoticed, sprain by rolling logs. I had much pain and trouble during three or four years; many times I could scarcely write, and came to use the hammer and saw with the left hand. It is useless to name the various modes of treatment, as time only seemed effectual in restoring the parts to nearly their natural condition. In December, 1855, I had a severe cold, affected lungs and head; had discharges at the ear, but kept the house for a few days and recovered. Early in the summer of 1857, I had poor appetite and no ambition, headache, and slight night-sweats. I gave up work early in August, put myself under a doctor's care, improving much in two months, and before winter, gained my usual health. Early in the spring of 1858 I had palpitation of the heart caused by eating new maple sugar; have been subject to it ever since, at intervals from a week to a year and a half, always brought on by drinking water or ale, or eating an apple. I felt somewhat weak during their continuance, but usually kept at what I happened to be doing, though they lasted from six to thirty-six hours. Two or three years following, I had two sharp stitches in the back, by lifting a slight weight, resulting in a lame back for a season.

"In August 1862, I enlisted in the army and soon went to Virginia; had but little difficulty in getting accustomed to camp-life and climate. I had no occasion to answer surgeon's call until the following winter, when I got cold, being on guard night and day during Burnside's so-called 'mud march', resulting in pain in the bowels and diarrhoea, but that all wore away in a month or two. During May, 1863, while in camp at Washington, I took a cold which troubled me till after the Battle of Gettysburg, when I had my left thigh fractured by a spent grape-shot. The fracture, only a simple diagonal, was never set, the bone uniting in its own way and time. Consequently, the left leg is about two inches shorter than the other, and crooked.

"In 1864, I received my discharge. I walked with a cane the following summer, then gave it up; experiencing no difficulty excepting the limp resulting from the shortness of the leg. During the year 1865, I was engaged in work which kept me on my feet. I frequently walked two miles, out and back, but experienced more fatigue than in previous years. In May 1866, I went to Chicago, and engaged in sedentary occupation; had about seven- eighths of a mile to walk to and from work. I usually walked rapidly, many times beating the horse-cars. In July 1867, I went to Pennsylvania and engaged in chair-making; on my feet all of the time, and some of the time standing still at a machine; also walked much over the rough hilly roads in that country. I was there upwards of three years; during the time I had two or three attacks of lame back, also of piles. When taking an armful of stock from the floor, I found it convenient to keep a stick in the right hand to assist in rising, In a letter to my brother, I remarked I felt that I was getting old. As I was then about the same age my father was when he made the same remark, the coincidence is remarkable.

"Late in 1869 or early in 1870, I noticed a fibrillous contraction just above the right knee, about halfway from the anterior to the inside. It is a tremulous twitching of the muscles, which is seen in the muscles of slaughtered animals after the skin is taken off. It is painless, but somewhat disagreeable, and more noticeable after retiring. In two or three days it was gone. I was at that time standing at a lathe during the day, and walking rapidly morning, noon, and night. In November 1870, I came to Gardner, where my employment was such that I had to stand stiller than ever. I was advised to sit on a stool part of the time, but I was not inclined to do so. I walked rapidly to and from the shop, each trip requiring about twelve minutes, four trips a day up hill and down. In February, 1871,I felt a general lameness or muscular soreness from over-exertion, loss of sleep, and taking cold. I had had such experiences before, most persons have the same. About the 20th or 25th of March, I noticed for the first time that I went upstairs with much difficulty, the trouble seeming to be in the right thigh. On the 26th of March, I walked to Westminster, a distance of five miles, and back. I felt generally fatigued, but noticed no particular lamenesss. That was the last foot-journey of any distance I ever took. Twice in April I quickened my pace to pass some person on the sidewalk, and felt a quick, painful sensation in the anterior portion of the right thigh. A few days subsequent to this, there was an alarm of fire about twelve o'clock. I started to run, but gave it up after a few steps, and have not tried to run since.

"I was a little anxious about all this, but did not suspect any permanent lameness existed. I cannot say when the thought of the "Wetherbee Ail" came into my mind. On May 11th, as I was going on an errand in the morning, I stopped to throw a stone at a small hawk in an apple tree, but fell myself, and the hawk flew away. Twice, soon after, I fell on throwing a stone. About this time, I had severe cramps in the right thumb. I consulted a doctor about this time, and begun a regular course of treatment. The first of June, I gave up going home for my dinner, and sat on a stool much of the time while at work. I still walked comfortably, but could not raise my weight up an ordinary step, or it would cripple and let me down. The reader will notice that the leg which was NOT broken failed; as it was some two inches longer than the other, it had to bear the greater burden, and, in going up-hill or up-stairs, virtually had to raise my weight two inches higher at every step than the broken leg. The tremulous twitching was very marked during this time, and occasional painful cramps. I continued to lose strength all summer, and was obliged to give up some kinds of work.

"September 1st, I found that the right thigh measured only sixteen inches, while the left measured nineteen. I used a cane at this time, and found it much service. At this time, I rode to and from the shop. About the 1st of November I found the left leg began to fail. The 1st of January, 1872, I found much difficulty in walking only a short distance. I gave up work and went to the Massachusetts General Hospital for five weeks; but no effect of the treatment was apparent; think the right thigh had decreased to fourteen and one-half inches in one year. There was but very little strength in the right leg, the muscle of the thigh was very flabby, and the heat was lower than in the other leg. I resumed my occupation in February. The fibrillous contractions and painful cramps had by this time nearly ceased in the right leg, but were visible in the left; also noticed weakness in the right thumb, especially when cold, and could not hold a carpenter's pencil in the usual way. I cannot state the number of times that I fell; I continued to ride to my work. Late in May I could bear no weight on my left toes. Meantime, I had bandaged my right foot and leg to the knee, on account of swelling. On the 27th of July, I was thrown from a carriage, the immediate result of which was a general muscular soreness, Particularly in the left foot and arms.

"From this time the progress of the disease was marked and rapid, especially in the ball of the right thumb and the left thigh. I now found it unsafe to step without a cane, or out of reach of something permanent. As the cold weather came on, I had to change my job for a lighter one in a warmer place. I gave up walking to the shop, used a wheelchair, and during the fall, was put into a buggy by a strong man. I continued to work through December, excepting some of the coldest days. But on the last afternoon of the year 1872, I fell and severely sprained the left knee; was obliged to quit work; and haved done nothing since.

"At no time since I first felt the lameness in the right thigh, have I been able to say with truth that I was a little better, or even about the same; but that I was not so strong as I was a month previous. This disease never stands still. I will close this sketch by saying, that at this writing, I cannot stand alone, have no control of the right leg whatsoever, and cannot move the toes. The left is very weak; both feet and legs, below the knees, are somewhat cold most of the time. I dress without assistance. My arms are not strong enough to raise my weight to my feet; have not strength to cough or sneeze with any force. Have a fair appetite and sleep well. It is probable that nearly every muscle in the system is affected, as I have felt the cramps and tremulous contractions in nearly every part. There is no loss of sensation in any part. The large muscles of the right thumb are much wasted, the whole hand has a bony appearance, and the third finger droops. Sometimes I cannot pick up a pin, and my writing is scarcely legible. I gave up all treatment six months ago, as I could never see any difference in the progress of the disease under treatment, and while not.

"One theory is, that this disease is not inherited by the descendants of the females; and the history of Mrs. Paine's family seems to confirm it. My object in writing this is, that those into whose hands it may fall, who are predisposed to this disease, may keep a watch upon themselves; and I exhort them to moderation in labor and physical exertion and in all things; and that they may have a history, though imperfect, of the cases which have appeared in our family, that they may immediately, on suspicion that they are attacked by any unusual thing, apply for the best help within their power. I waited some two months before taking any measures for relief. This disease is also known as "wasting palsy". It is known in other families. The so-called living skeletons, who are exhibited as curiosities, are sufferers from muscular atrophy in its worst form. I am the oldest of five; one sister and three brothers still enjoy fair health. None of us have used tobacco or spirituous liquors.

E. H. Wetherbee
Gardner, Massachusetts, March 31, 1873"

Postscript from Dr. Andrews, under date of March 30, 1874:

"This man, Wetherbee, died December 23, 1873.

His sister has recently consulted me with symptoms of the same disease. The left arm and shoulder are affected. The twitching of the fibrillae is worse at night. I prescribed iron and quinine, and rest. I was present at your clinic at Bellevue two years ago when you exhibited a patient -- a bridge builder -- from Ohio with the disease."

individuals; that while he was ready to serve at any time upon alarms, he believed it would serve the public better to permit him to continue at home in his employment than to compel him to comply with the draft first mentioned; also, council order dated Aug. 4, 1777, upon the representation of said Wetherbee, gunsmith, that he had been drafted as one of the one-sixth part of the militia called out to reinforce Col. NON-WETHERBEE SURNAME INDEX

This index includes most of those with non-Wetherbee surnames. Brides are listed under their surnames, followed by an asterisk (*). Daughters are listed under their married names, with Wetherbee in parentheses. Their husbands are also indexed. Families with descendants listed for several generations are not indexed past the first family. For example, on page 199 begins the descendants of Addison and Ann Elizabeth Brown. Their own children are indexed, but grandchildren are not.
